Build leaders

Developing middle school leaders through service

There's no such thing as a typical middle schooler.

Each is an individual with personal likes and dislikes and special interests. As they navigate their way through adolescence, they struggle with their identity. They seek independence. They test limits. They have tremendous energy.

Start a Builders Club—or continue sponsoring one—and you'll help them tap into that energy. Sponsored by Kiwanis, Builders Club is open to all middle and junior high school students who want to take on leadership roles and make a difference. Get involved with tweens in Builders Club and you'll :

Expand their world. Being involved in an active service organization with adult role models improves their self-esteem.

Introduce them to service learning. Students learn more effectively and become better citizens if engaged in community service.

Teach life skills. Builders Club members run meetings and lead groups. They hold elections and plan projects. They learn the values of leadership, character building, caring and inclusiveness.

To order an introductory kit, contact us at memberservices@kiwanis.org or 800-KIWANIS, ext. 411, and request a Builders Club Sponsorship guide. Ready to charter? Go to www.Kiwanis.org/charter.

Build community

“Society is me centered. Builders Club allows a person to go outside a me world and journey into an our world.”
